Comments: I'm Don Tocher, a highly experienced freelance IT Consultant who previously worked for Synstar International (now known as Hewlett-Packard Enterprise CDS), until I left to set up Donline Computer Consultancy in February 2006.

Donline delivers professional IT support for small / medium sized businesses, home offices, & home users.

Donline specialises in bringing true enterprise class IT support to those without their own IT department, and in supplementing existing IT teams where additional skills or resources are required.

Donline have supported both our business and private IT needs for a number of years. Nothing is to much trouble or indeed a stupid query. The response is lightninglike quick where Don was able to resolve our issue there and then.

Donline has been looking after our computer and Windows support for about 10 years. Always pleasant and when I don't understand exactly what is being talked about, I ask for clarification and this is provided. Everything is handled online with annual check-ups and the odd panic moment when Windows update throws me a wobbly! Good at solving the little problems as well as the bigger ones. Donline has also provide me with first class laptops and guided me through set ups, helped now by my having 1Gigabyte Fibre Fast Broadband. Very happy to recommend.

Don has been providing IT support to our charity for many years. He is meticulous, very knowledgeable and unendingly patient with those of us who are not hugely IT literate. He has helped us move offices and maintained our IT with efficient good humour, he will always find the solution that works best for us and not for him personally. He always reacts quickly when needed. Explains what needs to be done and why and always sees a job through to conclusion. Utterly reliable service provision as well as a friend to the charity.
